Auburn Notes.

Rabe Elliott was in Auburn Thursday.

Dr. and Mrs. Gaither, of Nemaha, spent Tuesday in Auburn, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed E. Sanders.

The high school commencement exercises will be held in the new opera house the evening of June 1. There are six graduates this year, Lydia Skeen, Lillian Seefeld, Muggie Daugh, Lillian Harmon, Herbert Hay, and Frank Clue.

Hoss Smith and another darkey named Robb are in jail, bound over to district court for having robbed Farlong & Eustice's hardware store several weeks ago. Hoss has confessed.

The leading barbers, Joe Nichols and Elmer Miller, are putting in extensive bath rooms, and Joe is also refitting his shop with new furniture throughout. Enterprise.

Annie Abbott, the "Little Electric Magnet," was at the new opera house Wednesday night. Her performance was something very interesting and puzzling. She did all she advertised and much more.

Auburn is to have telephonic connections with the balance of the world in the near future. This is something long needed.

The balloon ascension man with the circus couldn't get his balloon up high enough to come down with his parachute, so had to come down the old-fashioned way, badly injuring his ankle.

The country is in great distress and in a dire strait, but the president and four members of his cabinet are off shooting snipe. Their salaries go on just the same and Uncle Sam feeds and transports them.—Ex.

Bryan declines to be a candidate for defeat this fall. The World Herald suggests the name of Jefferson H. Broady, of Lincoln. Jefferson H. has as little liking for being put up simply to be knocked down as any man in the state, so he simply responds, "No, thank you," at the same time keeping up a lively thinking about the World Herald's actions when he was a candidate for supreme judge.

A terrible accident happened in Atchison county, Mo., Wednesday of last week. Miss Stella Hull, a young lady seventeen years of age, was burning a pile of brush when her clothes caught fire. The poor girl ran to a well in the pasture near by, and threw water over herself, but all the clothes were burned from her, even the stockings being burned. She was burned all over her body except the head and neck, the flesh in many places being black. In this condition she walked to the house, almost an eighth of a mile distant, when medical aid was summoned. She has to lie on her back and that is burned very bad, but says she does not suffer except when she is moved. Her recovery is very doubtful. Miss Hull is a Christian, and even in her terrible affliction praises her Heavenly Father. A twelve-year-old sister was the only one with her at the time of the accident.

An exchange says the report that thousands of Canadian women are wearing trousers this winter, and that women have appeared fully de Paris, London, in riding trousers and long-tailed coats, is quite appalling. But there is some good in all this. When all women wear trousers they will come to realize the importance of keeping suspender buttons sewed on.
